

Historian Report

November 22, 2014

Volume 1, Number 1

Scouts:

Francesco D.
Sammy P.
Trent S.
Will S.
Jack M.
Brendan N.
Kyle T.
Jonathan G.
Ryan Y.
Alex A.
Ben K.
Danny P.
Luke R.
Nick S.
Kiernan S.
Sean A.
Gabriel A.
Daniel A.
Colin C.
Ben P.
Eric R.
Grayson H.
Court S.
Dan C.
Andrew P.
Brett R.
Steven S.
Andrew V.
Jack P.
Geoffrey M.
Evan M.
Cory S.
Josh S.

Contact Us

<http://www.bsatroop730.org/>

DEATH VALLEY: By Geoffrey M.

This outing is known as the “Stars Wars” outing. Every one brings their light sabers and Star War’s gear and we all fight each other on the sandy dunes of Tattoine (Death Valley). It was a grueling 5 hour drive up steep windy roads to a nice camping spot under the millions of stars above Death Valley. That night was warm and humid, we all slept like kings. The next day we did a camp sweep and the adults found no trash!!! No pushups! After that everyone got into cars and left to the sand dunes where we climbed to the top of the highest dune and sled down the dunes in our sleds and we had lots of fun. Some scouts built a ramp for sleds; it was a nice jump at high speeds, but not such a good landing, Ouch! After the sand dunes we piled back into cars and left to go to a museum. The museum’s main purpose for us scouts was the cold water and the “clean” bathrooms. Then we left to our new campsite, we cooked up lunch and then made our dinner. After dinner we celebrated a birthday and got giant cookies. Some scouts left in cars to go look at stars at an observatory at an airport. Then we slept the night, and there was Haboob, a giant dust and wind storm. I unfortunately slept outside and was tossed around. In the morning we cooked breakfast and got on the road to the salt flats. The lowest point in the United States. We walked on salt for about .2 miles. Then we hit the road for another 5 hours home.